Dataline Media Safes

In this era of electronic evolution, data processing has revolutionized significantly. More and more computer media is being consumed in the form of diskettes, magnetic tapes, floppies, flash drives, etc. Important and valuable data is preserved and exchanged through these media.

And when this data is threatened by means beyond one's control, like fire for instance, the work functions grind to a halt. It thus becomes important to preserve this data. However, the make and properties of these media is very different from regular paper documents. So are their reactions to smoke and gases. Consequently, security measures adopted for the computer media have to be different. Godrej presents Dataline, a specially designed range of media safes which offer fire resistance for various computer media.
